

WATERFORD PRESS

Fall 2024 Catalog

About Us

Waterford Press revolutionized nature publishing in the mid-1990s by challenging the traditional format of field guides prevalent at the time. Before this innovation, most field guides followed a dense, book-like structure arranged in taxonomic order. While comprehensive, these guides often proved cumbersome and impractical for use in the field, especially for beginners and casual nature enthusiasts.

Recognizing this gap, Waterford Press introduced folding guides that were lightweight, compact, and user-friendly, featuring a fold-out accordion-style layout that allowed for easy navigation and quick reference. Our approach prioritized key visual identification features, habitat information, and behavioral traits over scientific classification. This structural innovation catered specifically to novice users who needed accessible information in a format that could withstand outdoor conditions.

With more than 650 titles in print, Waterford Press guides have become indispensable companions for hikers, campers, and educators by condensing essential details into a portable, water-resistant, or waterproof format. A woman-owned business, we remain committed to delivering timely, relevant topics that inspire users to go outside.

In the News

In the fall of 2024 and through 2025, we will be undertaking the first price increase since 2016. The new price, at $8.95, is at par with other guides in this format. As of this date, 22 titles have already been printed and are in circulation at the new price, and the rest of our titles at that price will be updated as they are reprinted. We expect this price conversion to occur over the next 18 months. Please refer to the Index to determine which titles are already priced at $8.95, and which are due for conversion over 2024/2025.

Made in the USA

As the original and largest publisher of folding pocket-sized guides in the industry, we print 100% of our products in the USA—a sign of our commitment to supporting jobs for those who use our guides.

Fall 2024 Releases

Wildflowers

More than 200 species of orchids are native to North America. This folding pocket guide highlights 95 of the most notable and recognizable species, some of which exist in both extremes of hot weather and cool climates. Beautifully illustrated with factual details, each species includes information about its habitat and general geographical location. While collecting orchids is not permitted in wild areas, as many have protected or endangered status in the wild, this portable resource aids in the identification and enjoyment of several species and is a handy field reference for botanists and nature enthusiasts.
